NEW YORK, N. Y.

1880

ASSOCIATION OF MANUFACTURERS

AN

ACCOUNT, &c.

ON the 21st of November, 1794, a meeting was held at Epping Place Inn, to take into consideration a proposal made by J. Conyers, Esq; of Copped-Hall, for the better Relief and Employment of the Poor.

Mr. Conyers, who was unanimously requested to take the Chair, opened the business in an address to the meeting, setting forth the many inconveniences sustained, as well by the poor themselves, as by the public at large, from the great decline of industry among the lower classes of the community; and the consequent necessity of adopting some plan for their relief and employment, which might be advantageous to all parties. He assured the meeting, that, anxious as he was that the poor should be better maintained, and their comfort promoted, by having their attention engaged in some active employment, he did not presume to recommend a merely speculative plan of his own, but one which had been tried with success in different parts of the kingdom. It originated in the southern district of the parts of Lindsey, in the county of Lincoln, under the patronage of the Rev. Mr. Bouyer; and by the zeal and activity of the Rev. Mr. Foster, was introduced into Rutland*. In the latter county he had attended the process of it, from the time of its first institution, in the year 1785, and upon the experience of ten years, could venture to pronounce that it would be well to adopt a similar plan in Essex. The plan which he alluded to, and which he should have the honor to lay before the meeting, was founded on one of the wisest and most humane laws which this country has to boast of; and which was passed in the 43d year of Queen Elizabeth's reign, for the maintenance and employment of the poor. The object of this act was not merely to relieve the indigent, but to prevent indigence itself. It was calculated not only to guard against poverty and distress, but against vice and immorality also. It regarded the mental as well as the corporal welfare of those whom it professed to protect. He could not avoid observing the superiority of the act just mentioned over some of the acts which have been since passed for the regulation of the poor; acts, which permitted parishes to farm their poor to governors of work-houses, (whose interest it is to make as great a profit of them as possible) and to affix badges to the clothes of paupers. These regulations had indeed made it painful to indigent persons of any sensibility, to apply for that relief, which the infirmities and calamities incident to human nature rendered necessary for them; but neither had reduced, or were likely to reduce the number of the poor, or to correct the profligacy of their manners. In this opinion he was countenanced by no less an authority than that of the late Sir W. Blackstone, who in allusion to this act had observed, "That in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, a plan was formed more humane and beneficial than even feeding and clothing of millions, by affording them the means (with proper industry) to feed and clothe themselves. And the further any subsequent plans for maintaining the poor have departed from this institution, the more impracticable, and even pernicious, their visionary attempts have proved." Such being the excellence of the 43d of Queen Elizabeth, we should do well to revert to the wise regulations of our ancestors, and to have recourse to the measures (founded on the basis of that act) which have recently proved so successful in Lincolnshire and Rutland. He was not inclined to suppose that those counties were more zealous in the cause of humanity than the county of Essex; and he should think it impertinent to offer any arguments to induce the meeting, to engage in what he trusted they were naturally inclined to. If any arguments were necessary, he conceived they would come with more dignity and persuasion from many of those gentlemen whom he saw around him, than from himself. He meant the resident clergy in that neighbourhood, whose attendance on this occasion he had particularly solicited, because he considered, that no persons could be more sensible than they were, of the evils attendant upon idleness. He doubted not, that recommendations to so useful an institution, would not be confined to the clergy of the established church; but that every propagator of the christian religion, under any form of worship whatever, would heartily concur in promoting a plan so consistent with the principles of christianity. He flattered himself, that such persons as possessed ease and affluence, would evince to the public, that in this happy country, such blessings are not considered as bestowed merely for the purposes of self gratification, but that the possessors may employ them for the good of the community.

* Institutions of a similar nature have been attended with considerable advantages at Shrewsbury and at Glasgow. At the great Town of Ham-burgh, in Germany, the experiment has been equally successful. The aggregate of the expence for a year, where the inhabitants are estimated at 110,000, and where no beggar is seen, but the poor are actually relieved, and their children carefully instructed, does not exceed 24,000l. whilst the sum annually raised in Norwich, which contains perhaps less than 40,000 inhabitants, is 24,000l. The inference is obvious!

He had taken the liberty of saying thus much in introduction of the plan, which he should that day submit to the meeting. He begged leave only to add, that in recommending it, he did not wish to raise the expectation too high in regard to its immediate reduction of the poor's rates; by encouraging a spirit of industry among the lower classes of the community, it was but reasonable to suppose that the rates would be reduced, and the operation of the plan to that effect in the counties of Lincoln and Rutland, warranted the supposition; but to what degree they might be reduced, he could not pretend to say. If, however, nothing more were to be obtained by such an institution, than the training to virtue, those who are now given up to vice, surely this advantage would repay the trifling expence and trouble which it might occasion. Mr. Conyers concluded his address, with recommending to the Hundreds of Ongar and Harlow, and the Half Hundred of Waltham, the adoption of a plan for the management of the poor, similar to that which had met with so much success in the counties of Lincoln and Rutland.

The resolutions which were passed at the general meeting of the county of Rutland, in the month of Nov. 1785, at the first establishment of the Society of Industry in that county, were then read by the Chairman, and it was agreed that those resolutions should be considered as the ground-work of an establishment of the same kind, for the Hundreds of Ongar and Harlow, and the Half Hundred of Waltham. It was further agreed that these resolutions should be printed, and sent to the Ministers, Church-wardens, and Overseers of each parish, within the said Hundreds; and that they be requested to take the sense of their respective parishes on the propriety of establishing a Society of Industry.

The meeting was then adjourned to the 12th of December, at which time eleven parishes having expressed their approbation of the plan* proposed to them, for the better relief and employment of the poor, it was resolved that the same should be carried into execution. Subscriptions and donations were received from many persons then present, in aid of this plan, and it was resolved that the eleven parishes, together with any other parishes, or individual subscribers, who should hereafter unite with them in this undertaking, should form an association under the name and title of the Society for the promotion of Industry; that the magistrates of the three hundreds above described, together with the ministers, church-wardens, and overseers of the subscribing parishes, be appointed Trustees for the management of the schools of Industry; that John Conyers, Esq; be appointed Chairman, and the Rev. T. A. Abdy, Treasurer of the Society. Many parishes having desired further time to consider of the plan, a copy of the proceedings of this meeting was ordered to be sent to each of them.

The meeting was further adjourned to the 9th of January 1795, when two other parishes joined the association. A committee, with general powers, was appointed to conduct the business, seven of whom were to constitute a quorum. Mr. J. Jessopp, Attorney, of Waltham Holy Cross, offered his services gratis, as Secretary. The thanks of the association were voted to him for his generous offer, which was accepted, and he was accordingly appointed to the office of Secretary.

* See the Resolutions of the Committee, p. 6.

The first meeting of the committee was held on the 23d of January, 1795. At this meeting, further subscriptions and donations were received—The parish of Nazeing joined the association, which now consisted of the following parishes:

A proposal was made to print "An Address to the Public, on the propriety of establishing Schools for Spinning and other Work, &c. &c." The address consisted principally of extracts from a pamphlet † published some time since, by the Rev. Mr. Bouyer, in which the advantages of an institution of this nature are so clearly pointed out, that they would carry conviction (as it was conceived) to every unprejudiced mind. The proposal met with the unanimous approbation of the committee; and two thousand copies of the address were ordered to be printed, part of which were to be dispersed gratis, at the discretion of the committee, through the different parishes in the division of Ongar, Harlow, and Waltham, and the remainder to be sold for the benefit of the association.

The committee then resolved, That the annual subscription, from parishes to the funds of this institution, should be in the proportion of one per cent. on the annual amount of the poor's rates of each parish; that the annual subscriptions of individuals, should not exceed Five Shillings each, but that larger sums might be received as benefactions.

That the minister, church-wardens, and overseers of each subscribing parish be requested to receive subscriptions and benefactions, and to transmit the same to the Treasurer.

That subscribers resident in non-subscribing parishes, may jointly recommend a candidate for the premiums to be given by this society, though such candidate shall belong to a non-subscribing parish: provided that the subscriptions of such recommending subscribers shall together equal, or exceed the proportion of one per cent. of the preceding year's poor's rates, in the parish to which such candidate shall belong.

That premiums in clothing be given to such children of certain ages and descriptions, as shall have produced the best specimens of industry.

That any young person at going out to apprenticeship or service, or on being married, with the approbation of the committee, shall receive not less than Five Pounds, or more than Ten Pounds, if he or she shall have gained three of the annual premiums given by the committee; not less than two or more than Three Pounds for having gained two premiums; and not less than Thirty Shillings, or more than Two Pounds for having gained one premium *.

That premiums be given to such overseers of the poor, as shall distinguish themselves in the due execution of their office, relative to the employment of the poor.

That premiums be given to such poor persons as shall have brought up four or more children (born in wedlock) to the age of fourteen years without relief from the parish.

That it be recommended to the different parishes to provide a convenient place as a working room, and a proper person as a teacher.

That it be likewise strongly recommended to the parish officers (as the most effectual means of preventing families from becoming chargeable) to furnish wheels gratis either to grown persons or children who are desirous to employ themselves, and to order the teachers to instruct them gratis, and to allow them free admission to the working room: and that the profits arising from work done by any persons not relieved by their parish, be considered as their own.

That minutes of the proceedings of the committee be kept by the chairman, and that upon application made to him, every subscriber be permitted to inspect the minutes.

That the treasurer's account shall be open, at the meetings of the committee, to the inspection of any three subscribers who may request it jointly.

That all expences attending the meetings of the committee shall be defrayed by the committee themselves.

That the time for the trial of the merits of the candidates for premiums, shall be the months of November and December next.

The committee next took into their consideration the manner in which the poor had been usually paid for their spinning work. It appeared, that, when the work was finished, a deduction in every pound of wool was made from the price, to be paid to the spinner, by the persons who supplied the raw materials, and that the poor were compelled to take the remainder in shop-goods, instead of money. In order to relieve them of this hardship, the committee intended to appoint persons to give out the raw materials, and to pay the value of all work in money. So many difficulties however had occurred, that they have not yet been able to carry this good intention into effect. In the mean time, they have recommended to the different parishes, as an encouragement to the industrious poor, to pay them a sum equivalent to the deduction made in the price of their work.

At this, and at their subsequent meetings, the committee gave orders for printing and circulating such of their resolutions as were necessary to be generally known, in order to further the views of the institution.* As a check to wilful idleness, they requested the parish officers to give notice in their respective parishes, that application would be made to the magistrates not to order relief to any poor family (merely on account of the number of children in such family) unless it should appear that every child above the age of six years could either spin or knit, or was actually employed in one of the Schools of Industry in learning to spin or knit. And in order to preserve uniformity and regularity in the accounts to be kept at the different schools, books† were provided and sent to the respective parishes, containing tables for entering the names and ages of the scholars, with remarks on their attendance or absence, on the quantity of work done by them, and on their general behaviour.

At a meeting of the committee on the 31st of December 1795, a paper was read, containing the resolution of the subscribers to this institution, resident in the parish of Chigwell, setting forth, "That the undersigned, finding that a parochial adoption of the plan proposed by J. Conyers, Esq. for the better relief and employment of the poor, might disturb the tranquility of the parish (some persons not being sensible of the advantages likely to result from it) at the same time acknowledging their obligation to Mr. Conyers for having so disinterestedly stood forward for the public

* They likewise printed and circulated with their own resolutions the following Extracts from the Act of the 43d, Eliz. chap. 2.

Section 1. "That the churchwardens of every parish, and two or more substantial householders there to be nominated yearly in the Easter-week, or within one month after Easter, under the hand and seal of two or more justices of the peace, in the same county, shall be called overseers of the poor of the same parish; and they, or the greater part of them, shall take order, from time to time, by and with the consent of two or more such justices of the peace as aforesaid, for setting to work the children of all such whose parents shall not, by the said churchwardens and overseers, or the greater part of them, be thought able to keep and maintain their children; and also for setting to work all such persons, married or unmarried, having no means to maintain them, and using no ordinary and daily trade: and also to raise weekly, or otherwise, by taxation of every inhabitant, &c. a convenient stock of flax, hemp, wool, thread, and other necessary ware and stuff, to set the poor on work.

Section 2. "Which said churchwardens and overseers, so to be nominated, shall meet together, at least once in every month, in the church of the said parish, upon the Sunday in the afternoon after divine service; there to consider of some good course to be taken, and of some meet order to be set down in the premises; upon pain, that every one of them absenting themselves, without lawful cause, from such monthly meeting, for the purpose aforesaid, or being negligent in their office, or in the execution of the orders aforesaid, being made by and with the assent of the said justices of the peace, or any two of the beforementioned, to forfeit for every such default of absence or negligence, twenty shillings.

Section 4. "And it shall be lawful for the said justices of the peace, or any one of them, to send to the house of correction, or common gaol, such as shall not employ themselves to work, being appointed thereunto as aforesaid."

" good, and being desirous of giving the plan a fair trial, do voluntarily subscribe the sums annexed to their names" as subjoined to the said resolution.

The above paper having been read, and it appearing that the subscriptions from the parish of Chigwell exceeded the proportion of one per cent. on the annual amount of the poor's rate, it was resolved that the said parish be entitled to the advantages of this institution.

At this meeting, the names of fifty two children were given in as candidates for the premiums offered to the best spinners and knitters; and twenty-one parents were proposed as candidates for the premiums offered to those who had brought up four or more children (born in wedlock) to the age of fourteen years without parochial relief.

The committee, on account of the infant state of the institution, considered it to be inexpedient to require a certain quantum of work from the spinning and knitting candidates, to entitle them to premiums; they therefore contented themselves with adopting such regulations as might prevent impositions among the candidates, and resolved in general terms, that premiums in clothing not exceeding twenty shillings in value, nor less than five shillings, should be given to the most industrious spinning or knitting candidate, according to their respective merits. They likewise resolved that premiums in money, not exceeding two guineas, nor less than one guinea, should be given to those parents who had brought up four or more children to the age of fourteen years without parochial relief. In pursuance of these resolutions, they distributed in premiums at their next meeting, on the 22d of January, 1796, the sum of £.32 0s. 6d. in money, among twenty-one parents; and to the amount of £.23 10s. in clothing, among thirty-one children, who were considered as the most industrious of the fifty-two spinning and knitting candidates.

On the 29th of January, 1796, and by adjournment on the 29th of February, a general meeting was held of the subscribers to the association, when the committee reported the names of the successful candidates, and the amount of the premiums distributed to them, the total of which was £.55 10s. 6d. and they stated that a balance of £.79 15s. 5d. remained in the hands of the treasurer. It was voted that the further sum of £.1 15s. should be given in premiums between two knitting candidates, whose names had been omitted in the general distribution.

The thanks of the society were given to the chairman and the treasurer for the zeal and attention which they had shewn in conducting the business of this institution, and they, together with the members of the committee for the last year, were requested to continue in their respective offices. The thanks of the society were likewise given to the secretary; and as the meetings of the committee were frequently appointed on those days, when Mr. Jessopp's engagements prevented him from attending in person, his son, Mr. John Sympton Jessopp, was appointed secretary in his stead. It was resolved that parochial subscriptions should be in the proportion of one per cent cent. on the poor rates of the year 1794; and that parishes and individual subscribers be desired to give three months notice previous to their withdrawing their subscriptions; and that they be considered as subscribers till such notice be given.

The committee, at their next meeting, on the 11th of April, 1796, were of opinion, that the views of this institution would be more effectually promoted by giving immediate rewards, than by holding out remote and uncertain expectations, they therefore determined that the resolution which entitled successful candidates to future claims at going out to apprenticeship, * or service, or on being married, should be rescinded, and that greater rewards should be given in the first instance. But that this determination should not affect the future claims of those who have already received one premium, so far as they may be entitled to make such claims in consequence thereof. It was further determined, in consideration of the very high price of the necessaries of life, in the last, and present years, that claimants for the premiums for bringing up children without parochial relief, should not be excluded from the premiums, on account of their having occasionally received relief during the years 1795 and 1796, provided it should appear that such relief was given merely on account of the high price of provisions. And, that in distributing premiums to claimants of the above description, such persons as are, and have been, for some time past, members of a legally established friendly society, should be entitled to a larger premium than others who are not members of such a society.

In order to promote emulation among the poor, it was resolved to give to the successful candidates, printed attestations † of their merits, and of the premiums given them by the society, that the same might be hung up in their respective dwellings.

The committee having observed with pleasure, the superior comforts of those families, where a spirit of industry had been excited among the children; wishing at the same time to extend their encouragement and rewards to other modes of laudable exertion, as well as to spinning and knitting (as far as their fund will admit) resolved to give premiums to such children, according to their ages, who shall excel in the most useful kinds of plain needle work. The trial months for the present year were then fixed for November and December next.

On the 12th of September, the committee, after making enquiries into the state of the schools in the different parishes, proceeded to take into consideration to what amount premiums should be offered to the industrious poor, and what qualifications should be required to entitle candidates to receive the premiums of the society.

It was then resolved, that a sum not exceeding Eighty Pounds be distributed in premiums for the present year.

That the candidates for the spinning premiums be divided into three classes ; the first class to consist of children not exceeding the age of 14 years ; the second, of children not exceeding the age of 12 years ; and the third, of children not exceeding the age of 9 years.

* See the 1st resolution in page 7.

† See the specimen, p. 14.

That candidates for Jersey Spinning in the first class, shall have spun ten dozen hanks during the trial months, to entitle them to premiums ; that candidates in the second class shall have spun eight dozen hanks ; and those of the third class, four dozen.

That candidates for premiums for Flax Spinning, shall have spun, in the first class, not less than ten pounds of long flax from 16 to 29 leas ; in the second class, not less than ten pounds from 12 to 14 leas ; and in the third class, not less than eight pounds from 12 to 14 leas.

That candidates for Knitting premiums, or premiums for Plain Needle-work, be divided into two classes ; the first, to consist of children not exceeding the age of 14 years ; and the second, of children not exceeding the age of 10 years.

That candidates for Knitting premiums in the first class, shall have knit during the trial months, three pair of men's worsted stockings, each pair weighing not less than 9 ounces ; and candidates in the second class, shall have knit two pair of men's worsted stockings of the same weight ; regard being had to the goodness of the work.

That candidates for premiums for Plain Needle-work in the first class, shall have made not less than one man's shirt of fine linen ; and candidates in the second class, shall have made not less than one man's shirt of coarse linen.

That premiums in clothing be given at the discretion of the committee to the best Spinning candidates ; viz. of the value of Twenty-five Shillings, to candidates in the first class ; of the value of Twenty Shillings, to candidates in the second class ; and of the value of Fifteen Shillings, to those of the third class.

That premiums in clothing be also given to those candidates who shall exhibit the best specimens of Knitting or Plain Needle work ; viz. of the value of Twenty Shillings, to candidates of the first class ; and of the value of Fifteen Shillings, to those of the second class.

That candidates for premiums, (who work at their own houses) be required to carry their work every Saturday during the trial months, to a proper person, who shall be appointed in each parish by the trustees, to the intent that the said work be examined and ticketed, and kept separate till the whole be compleated.

That candidates of the above description, after they shall have delivered in the work done during the trial months, be required to spin, knit, or work with their needle, for the space of an hour, before a proper person, appointed as above-mentioned by the trustees ; that an account be taken of the work done within the hour, and that this account be laid before the committee.

That such children as intend to be candidates for the premiums, be required to send in to one of the trustees, their names and qualifications, together with a certificate of their age, signed by the minister of the parish; and that the trustees be requested to lay the same before the committee at their next meeting.

That premiums not exceeding Two Guineas, or less than One Guinea, be given to those parents who shall have brought up four or more children (born in wedlock) to the age of 14 years without relief from the parish.

That, the next meeting of the committee be held at Fpping Place Inn, on Monday, the 31st of October, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon; and all persons who intend to be candidates for premiums, are desired to give in their names before that time, lest they should be too late to obtain the benefits of this institution.

On the day appointed for receiving the names of the candidates for premiums, after the trustees had made their report, it appeared that there were twenty-five candidates for the premiums offered to parents who had brought up four or more children; fifty-nine candidates for spinning premiums; eleven candidates for knitting premiums; and thirteen candidates for premiums for the best specimens of needle-work. The trustees were requested to get satisfactory information of the merits of their respective candidates, previous to the distribution of the premiums, and to appoint proper persons to inspect the work done out of the schools. With a view to encrease the number of individual subscribers, and benefactors to this institution, the committee resolved to print 2000 subscription lists with a short address to the heads of families, agreeably to a specimen* produced at this meeting, and to circulate the same through the different parishes in the Ongar, Harlow, and Waltham divisions.

On the 9th of January, 1797, the committee distributed their annual premiums for the year 1796, when £.37 5s 6d. in money was given to twenty-one parents who had severally brought up four or more children to the age of 14 years without parochial relief; and clothing to the amount of £.36 15s. was given to thirty-seven children who had produced the best specimens of industry in spinning, knitting, and plain needle work †.

An account of the origin and progress of the Society, drawn up by the Rev. W. Herringham, was read to the committee, who voted him their thanks for the same, requesting him to add thereto the proceedings of this day, and to print the whole for the general information of the subscribers, as well as of the public at large.

The figures over the days of the week denote the day of the month. In the columns for the days of the week, remarks may be made on the time of each child's coming to or going from school, when any deviation is made from the regular school hours. Thus, Sarah Thompson, on the 18th May, is marked (half d.) that is, half a day at school; on the 21st (ab.) absent. T. Land, on the 18th (c. 10 w. 3.) that is, came to school at 10 o'clock, went home at 3; on the 21st (ab. L.) absent with leave. W. Jenkins, on the 20th (ab. l.) absent through illness. Under the head of work done, S. denotes spin; K. knit; and W. worked with a needle; as, Mary Jones spun 8 hanks—Sarah Thompson knit 4 ounces—E. Adams worked or made half a shirt.

J. CONYERS, Chairman.

The form of the attestation given to parents for bringing up children to the age of Fourteen years, without parochial relief, differs from the above, only in the circumstances of the case, viz. in expressing that C. D. received a premium of _____ in money, for having brought up _____ children born in wedlock, to the age of Fourteen years without relief from the Parish.

These attestations are printed in a clear letter, on wire wove paper, and are put upon paste board, with a neat border, and a loop at the top to hang them up by. And the committee have had the satisfaction of knowing that the persons to whom they have been given, have considered them as honourable marks of distinction.

SOCIETY OF INDUSTRY,

For the Hundreds of Ongar and Harlow, and the Half Hundred of Waltham, in the County of Essex.

THE committee appointed to conduct the business of this society, anxious for the welfare of an institution, (which if generally encouraged, would produce the most salutary effects) respectfully solicit the pecuniary aid of the benevolent, to enable them to carry their plans more effectually into execution.

Their object is to excite a spirit of industry among the poor, and especially among children, upon the full conviction that habits of industry, as being usually connected with moral and religious principles, are most likely to promote comfort and happiness. With a view to excite such a spirit, one part of their plan is, annually, to give premiums to the most industrious poor, both to encourage them, and to stimulate others to follow their example.

As their fund principally depends upon annual contributions (not exceeding Five Shillings each) and casual benefactions, they have thought it adviseable to circulate this address; requesting such heads of families, as are inclined to promote this institution, to enter in the annexed columns their own names, and the names of those persons in their families, who chuse to be contributors, or casual benefactors, expressing against each name, the amount of his or her contribution, or benefaction.

The smallest sums will be thankfully received, and carefully applied.
